

SUPPORT OUR YOUNGEST LEARNERS—ANYWHERE!

The COVID-19 educational landscape will continue to change. Some students will have physical classrooms among peers, some scheduled virtual lessons, and some a hybrid of both. No matter what it looks like, student development can happen anywhere, and kids will always need supplies to feel empowered and ready to learn.

Access to these essential learning supplies requires financial support. The pandemic is palpable—1 in 2 American households report some employment or income loss since the pandemic began. As more and more families struggle to afford essentials like food and rent, spending an average of $320 a year on school supplies is unrealistic, and unaffordable.

As part of Cradles to Crayons' on-going COVID-19 emergency relief efforts, our Ready for Learning initiative this year will ensure that 50,000 CHI/50,000 MA/50,000 PHL kids have everything they need to feel ready to learn by distributing critical learning supplies through our network of social service partners.

We believe that learning should be accessible to all children—no matter what. There has never been a greater sense of urgency to respond to the changing needs of our community.
